MOOSE CALF
'ADOPTS' MAN
AS ITS MOTHER

Curt Mintz huddled in the bush with his two dogs for 20 minutes waiting for the cow moose to attack.

"There's no way you can come between a cow and a calf and live," Mintz said in an interview Monday. "I'd rather meet a grizzly."

But there was no attack.

Instead, Mintz became the adopted mother to a three-day-old female moose calf that now lives at the Yukon Game Farm on the Takhini Hot Springs Road.

Mintz came upon the moose on June 2 while strolling through the woods about four kilometres from his cabin on the Alaska Highway near Whitehorse.

"I heard it first, and I thought it was a bear, so I just dived down and grabbed the two dogs and held them.

"I knew whatever it was didn't hear me, 'cause it was making too much noise.

"When I saw it was calf sitting there, I was more worried. I thought, 'I came between a cow and a calf, I'm in really big trouble,' I stayed down there for about 20 minutes.

"I circled around the thing and saw it was a calf moose. So then I snuck up on it and within 10 feet, it heard me. It started crying just like a little baby."

That's when he realized it was alone.

The calf was probably a twin and left behind by its mother, Mintz said. If the mother had been shot, he said, the calf would have stayed with the mother and the hunters would have gotten it.

"It wouldn't have lasted overnight. There's no doubt about it. It's like Grand Central Station out there for coyotes."

He stroked the calf, grabbed it, put it on his shoulders and marched four kilometres back to his cabin with it.

"After about maybe an hour or two, it figured I was its mother. If I walked away from it, it would start crying."

The calf wasn't afraid of people, he said. It liked his dogs, his friend's cat, and gave his guests big moose-lip kisses.

It would cry to eat, lay down, and go outside because it wanted Mintz to be closer to it.

It was three days old, so it couldn't follow him far. It would walk for a while, then stop and cry when Mintz continued.

"I entertained thoughts at one point in time of keeping it," Mintz said. But he decided it would be better for the moose if it went to the game farm. Danny Nowlan, owner of the Yukon Game Farm, is an old friend of Mintz's father.

Nowlan has had a bull moose for about 10 years, said Mintz, and he hasn't be able to find a cow.

So, this could be the beginning of a Yukon moose family bred in captivity.

SUPER-ROBIN ZIPS 900 MILES IN SEVEN-HOUR MIGRATION

Rupert the Robin's winter migration came late - but it sure was fast.

It took Rupert only about seven hours Friday to fly 925 miles from Whitehorse to Vancouver. And he didn't have to move a feather.

Rupert came the easy way - on a mercy flight that saved him from almost certain death by starvation or freezing.

Whitehorse car dealer Bill Drury first spotted Rupert Nov. 10 munching berries on the mountain ash in front of his living room window.

As the days went by Drury and his wife grew concerned that Rupert didn't fly south to join his fellow robins who had left a month earlier.

On Thursday they decided Rupert needed some assistance.

"It was 17 below zero, the coldest day yet, and the winds were strong, 25 miles an hour," said Drury. "I don't think the poor little thing would have lasted another day."

He snared Rupert in his hat, thawed him out in the house and fed him snow from a teaspoon and cranberries impaled on broom straws.

A wildlife expert told him that the bird would have little change of surviving the Yukon winter, so Drury decided to arrange Rupert's migration for him.

He got co-operation from Whitehorse Star publisher Bob Erlam and Canadian Pacific Airlines, and Rupert was booked onto flight 22 Friday afternoon with a supply of cranberries from Drury's deep-freeze.

"When I saw him off he was as fit as blueberry pie. Better make that mountain ash berry pie," said Drury.

Rupert was pampered by the stewardesses on the flight and met at Vancouver International Airport by Bill Bell chief inspector for the SPCA.

He spent the night at Bell's home.

"He's pretty perky," Bell said today. "I got him some mountain ash berries from a bush up the street."

He said he planned to release Rupert in Stanley Park later on in the day.

Rupert should feel at home there.

"We have lots of mountain ash bushes," said Stanley Park zoo curator Alan Best. "And they're loaded with berries this year."

TAKE GOOD CARE OF HIM: says Bill Drury as he turns Rupert the Robin over to CPA stewardesses Autumn Bell and Virginia Marshall Friday afternoon at the Whitehorse airport. The half-frozen bird had been existing on frozen berries from the mountain ash tree in the Drury's yard in sub-zero temperatures, until the local businessmen decided he should be given an assault on his delayed flight south. CPA took it from there and SPCA Inspector Bill Bell met Rupert at Vancouver Friday night. He was given special care all the way and released Saturday in Stanley Park. With him went a supply of Yukon low bush cranberries in case he runs out of mountain ash!
