Copper distillery brews more than booze

OLD MONEY - Keith Johnson of Burwash shows off some of the $780 in old bills he and two friends discovered in an old still while hunting near Kluane Lake.

The trio from the Kluane First Nation were walking back to their truck when they came across a metal object that was partially buried by a fallen tree, roughly 70 metres from the shore of Kluane Lake near Burwash Landing.

Burwash is located some 200 kilometres northwest of Whitehorse.

"I just happened to stumble over it," said Johnson.

At first, Johnson thought they had found an old abandoned breather from a bulldozer. But closer inspection revealed that the contraption of copper cans was actually a still for making liquor.

Finding the old still was interesting, but the real find lay inside one of the copper cans.

The hunters found a leather pouch full of papers, which the trio at first thought might be identification papers of the owner of the long-forgotten still.

However, the pouch contained a wad of 47 bills of paper money.

"At first, we thought it was American money," Johnson recounted Tuesday, as he described the bills that were much longer and wider than today's currency.

The money was actually Canadian, printed much earlier this century.

The party, which included Ed and Dwayne Johnson, distant relatives of Keith, found 10-, 20- and 50- dollar bills, dating mostly from the mid-1930s. The oldest is a $20 bill printed 2, 1917 by the Canadian Bank of Commerce January. In all, the stack of money totalled $780. While the money was well used, all the original dyes and lettering was still intact.

Following the discovery, Dwayne grew a little philosophical back at the party's hunt camp. "Yep, we'll never look at these mountains the same," he told his friends.

Keith brought the money to Whitehorse Tuesday to deposit it in a safety deposit box at CIBC. The bank staff, he said, marvelled at the condition of the money.

During an interview following his historic bank transaction, Johnson guessed that the money and the still were likely left behind by a gold prospector in the 1930s. Following the Gold Rush era in the Klondike, some gold hunters moved down to the Kluane area and mined during the Depression.

But the still was the only sign of human activity the hunting party could find in the area.

Now people are trying to figure out how much the money might be worth.

"When I asked if they (the bank) could count for inflation, they said it would take a while," said Keith.

The money as a currency might still only be worth its face value, but as a collectible it could be worth much more.

Keith has already done some research and uncovered that coin brokers value 1935 $10 bills at around $125 each. Twenty dollar bills can be worth $160.

Johnson, a 44-year-old heavy equipment operator, hasn't decided what to do with the money, but he figures the museum in Burwash might be interested in the still, which the hunting party also kept.

Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board

DRAFT SCREENING REPORT PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD

FARO MINE REMEDIATION PROJECT

The Executive Committee of the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Board (YESAB) invites the public to review and comment on the Draft Screening Report for the proposed Faro Mine Remediation Project. The project is subject to a Screening by the Executive Committee of YESAB under the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Act (YESAA).

PROJECT:	Faro Mine Remediation Project (project number 2019-0145)
PROJECT DESCRIPTION:	Once the largest open pit lead-zinc mine in the world, the Faro Mine is now considered one of the largest contaminated mine sites in Canada. When abandoned in 1998, large amounts of tailings and waste rock remained on-site. Site conditions will continue to deteriorate if nothing is done to remediate the site. The Project is located near the Town of Faro on the traditional territory of the Kaska Nation and upstream from the Selkirk First Nation. The project, as proposed by Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs Canada, consists of consolidating and covering ore, waste rock, and tailings, re-vegetation, diverting clean water away from contaminated sites through diversion channels, collecting and treating contaminated water and adaptive management.
DRAFT SCREENING REPORT:	The Draft Screening Report and recommendation was released on February 19, 2024, followed by a 60-day public comment period. The Executive Committee found significant adverse effects of the project and is recommending the application of 34 terms and conditions to reduce, control or eliminate adverse effects.
PUBLIC COMMENT PERIOD:	Closes April 19, 2024
ACCESS TO PROJECT PROPOSAL:	All project documents, including the Draft Screening Report is available on the YESAB Online Registry (YOR) at www.yesabregistry.ca . (search project #2019-0149)
SUBMIT COMMENTS:	Submit comments about the Draft Screening Report using the YESAB Online Registry (www.yesabregistry.ca) or by contacting the Executive Committee at the YESAB Head Office PH (867) 668-6420 or toll free 1-866-322-4040 / E-Mail yesab@yesab.ca .

Can't Count His Money

Such Is the Sad Condition in Which Alexander McDonald Finds Himself

Alexander McDonald, king of the Klondike, not only is not insolvent but has so much money it is almost a hopeless task to compute it. Such is the report brought out by a shrewd business man who left McDonald about fifteen days ago, and is a partner with him in his many enterprises. "The report is not only absurd but is malicious," said this gentleman.

Mr. McDonald went in to Dawson in March and his business affairs were never in better shape. Since then he has purchased five claims on Sulphur Creek at from $30,000 to $50,000 each.

He owns a whole or a fractional interest in 79 claims on Sulphur, Bonanza, Eldorado and Dominion creeks, and there isn't one wildcat among them. Every single claim is turning out a profit daily - and instead of borrowing money Mr. McDonald is loaning it. Rates used to be at 10 per cent per month, but any one with good security can get all the money he wants of McDonald at 2 and 3 per cent a month.

The so called story of McDonald's insolvency had not reached Dawson when this gentleman left, and when it does reach there, there will be a great laugh. The idea of a man being broke who does not owe a dollar and whose clean-up for the winter work amounted to $1,250,000 is something decidedly funny. Since he went to Dawson in March McDonald has paid $100,000 in royalties to the Canadian government, and besides his daily deeds of charity has made a donation of $30,000 cash to the Catholic church and hospital.

His income is continuous and he does not have to wait for the result of a winter's work in a spring cleanup. Some of his best paying claims are summer diggings and his pack train of mules comes into Dawson regularly once a week loaded down with gold.

The facts are McDonald is so wealthy it is impossible for him or any one else to make a close computation of his holdings. Besides his gold he has large improved holdings in real estate that bring in a splendid income. The person who started the story of his insolvency simply did so to try to injure the credit of one of the richest, best, most generous and highly respected men in all Alaska.

Mr. McDonald's friends in Juneau do not need these assurances, but they are none the less gratifying. - Juneau Miner. — The Bennett Sun, September 2, 1899

The Bennett Sun became the Whitehorse Star upon moving to Whitehorse from Bennett Lake, B. C. in July of 1900. The Whitehorse Star's first publication was on July 18, 1900.
